

THE STEADY GROWTH OF LAWLESSNESS IS THE MOST SERIOUS ISSUE BEFORE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, SAYS HOOVER

Law Enforcement "Is Far From Satisfactory," and "These Conditions Must Be Remedied," Cautions the Chief Executive. President's Address is A Clarion Call for Law Observance by All Classes of Society, Particularly by So-called "Good Citizens."

OUTLOOK FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACE AND REDUCTION OF ARMAMENT NEVER WAS BETTER

Business Basically Sound, So Much So, in Fact, That It is Safe to Immediately Cut Federal Taxes To the Extent of $160,000,000, Benefitting All Classes — Urges Passage of A Tariff Bill.

By George R. Holmes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Hoover informed Congress today that the most serious issue before the American people is the steady growth of lawlessness.

In his first annual message giving an accounting of his stewardship in the White House for nine months and affording a peek into the future, the President reported that the general state of the nation—economically, financially, and from an international standpoint—is excellent.

But law enforcement, he declared, "is far from satisfactory" and "these conditions must be remedied."

He referred specifically to Prohibition. And as in his inaugural address last March he sounded again a clarion call for law observance by all classes of society, particularly by so-called "good citizens."

"We can no longer," he said, "gloss over the unpleasant reality that he who condones or traffics with crime, who is indifferent to it and to punishment of the criminal, is himself the most effective agency for the breakdown of society. It is the most serious issue before the people."

So far as Prohibition itself is concerned, Mr. Hoover again proposed some of the remedial measures he put forward last March—the transfer of enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice; simplification of court procedure to speed up trials; and codification of prohibitory laws to eliminate red tape—but in the final analysis he conceded that the principal remedy lies with the people themselves.

"Law," he said, "cannot rise above its source in good citizenship—in what right-minded men most earnestly believe and desire."

It was noted with some significance, however, that the President did not mention, let alone endorse, the Sheppard bill which would make the buyer of liquor a felon along with the seller. Nor did he recommend any greater appropriation from the Treasury to reinforce the army of agents now trying to enforce the law.

The blot of lawlessness was the principal, virtually the only one, which Mr. Hoover found in the pleasant picture of national conditions.

He reported business basically sound, so much so, in fact, that it is safe to immediately cut Federal taxes to the extent of $160,000,000 benefitting all classes.

The outlook for international peace and reduction of armament was better, he said; he asserted agricultural conditions are vastly improved; that railroads are in a sound condition; and that generally speaking the American people are better off today than they have ever been, in a material sense.

"The problems we are confronted with," he said, "are the problems of growth and progress."

It was a voluminous message which Mr. Hoover transmitted to the new Congress, and it contained recommendations on more than a score of problems, ranging from fiscal affairs to social service.

On the tariff, which Congress wrestled unsuccessfully with all summer, he reiterated his desire for a tariff beneficial primarily to agriculture and to "sick industries," but he refrained again from expressing any opinion upon the original house bill with its high and general increases in industrial rates.

He quoted at some length from his message to the special session last April on the tariff, said he saw no reason to change his views as therein expressed, and only added that "it would be most helpful if action should be taken at an early moment." He did say, however, he wanted the flexible provision maintained. The Senate has knocked out that provision in the pending bill in defiance of his wishes.

Taking up the message by topics, as the President did, the high-points follow:

Foreign Relations

The outlook for peace never was better. American adherence to the World Court, under the Root formula, will be proposed later in a special message. Steady withdrawal of American Marines and soldiers from Nicaragua, Haiti and China, is contemplated, although a commission should be appointed to consider a policy in this respect in Haiti. Hopes are high for success at the London naval conference. The diplomatic service is being strengthened, principally in Latin-America.

National Defense

The Army and Navy are both at a high stage of efficiency, but both are costing too much to maintain. Size of both establishments and expense should be curtailed to conform with the brighter outlook for continued world peace.

Government Finances

The finances of the government are in sound condition. Public debt now at $16,931,000,000. Congress cautioned against excessive expenditure which in view of forthcoming tax reduction, might result in treasury deficit.

Tax Reduction

The Treasury will close the fiscal year 1930 with surplus of about $225,000,000, and year 1931 with about $123,000,000, which justifies tax reduction of about $160,000,000. Normal income rates should be reduced from 5, 3 and 1½ per cent to 4, 2 and one-half per cent and the corporation rate from 12 to 11 per cent.

Foreign Debts

All foreign war debts have been funded save those of Russia and Armenia. Senate should ratify French settlement. Government revenue from foreign debt sources now equals about half the annual interest on Liberty Bonds.

Alien Enemy Property

German and other enemy property is steadily being returned and should be completed during next year.

General Economic Situation

The country came safely through the crisis which was created by the stock market collapse. There was some fear that general business might start retrenchment policies because of uneasiness and thus cause unemployment, but that danger is now past, due to mobilization of governmental agencies to cooperate with and encourage general business expansion.

Agriculture

The agricultural situation is improving, thanks to efficient action by Federal Farm Board and steady improvement of commodity prices and credit conditions.

Tariff

Congress should revise tariff to afford protection to agriculture and lagging industries, without regard to sectional jealousies.

Public Buildings

Congress should increase the public buildings program, both in Washington and throughout the country.

Waterways and Flood Control

Increase of $5,000,000 annually recommended for rivers and harbors improvement, of which $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 should go to the Mississippi Valley system.

Highways

Federal aid to states in highway building has proved beneficial and should continue.

Postoffice

Revision of air mail rates necessary. Congress should consider expansion of Latin-American service.

Commercial Aviation

Progressing by leaps and bounds with governmental encouragement.

Railways

As a whole, railroads were never in such good physical and financial shape. Congress should speed up consolidation plans and relieve Interstate Commerce Commission of some of its minor functions.

Merchant Marine

Situation generally is satisfactory, but Congress should untangle legal restrictions upon the granting of ocean mail contracts.

Banking System

A joint commission of congress might be advantageous to consider new legislation governing branch banking.

Electrical Power Regulation

Federal Power Commission should be strengthened and empowered to regulate certain phases of interstate transmission.

Radio Commission

Congress should make radio commission a permanent body.

Muscle Shoals

Government should not operate these plants, but Congress should create a commission to lease them, subject to their being devoted to the general benefit of agriculture.

Conservation

Policy of conservation of natural resources should be continued.

Social Service

Jacob Schmidt Purchases Third Ward Property

A large tract of land has changed ownership in the Third Ward, according to an announcement made today. Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., has purchased from the James Waters Estate, all of the property included in the block bounded by Otter, Maple, Pearl and Locust streets.

Mr. Schmidt does not state what he intends to do with the plot but does say that he plans to improve the tract and make it a credit to the community.

The plot for a great many years has been an eye sore to residents in the section and the one dwelling which was on the tract is in bad condition.

SCOUT SOLICITORS READY FOR DRIVE

Workers Urged to Impress Upon People the Fine Work Being Done For the Boys

A SCOUT MAKES SPEECH

A number of well-known speakers addressed the captains and their aides of the Bucks County Boy Scout and Maintenance Fund Campaign at a dinner held last night in Odd Fellows' Hall.

Mayor Thomas Stockham, of Morrisville, urged the workers to go out and let the people know of the wonderful work the fund will do for the Boy Scouts of this county, of the benefits they will derive in health and spirit at the scout camp, and urged everyone to help put this great cause over.

The Rev. George F. Hess, pastor of Bristol M. E. Church, and Walter F. Leedom were also among the speakers, who told of the need for such a cause as this to keep the boys from the streets and to teach them useful things to help make them physically fit and morally strong.

Emil Metzger, chairman of Bristol, appointed the following ward captains and their aides: First ward, John P. Smoyer; second ward, James Douglass and J. E. W. Tracy; third ward, Edward Stetson and Raymond Gallagher; fourth ward, Fred Bell; fifth ward, Richard Winslow, Herbert Pettit, Roy Fry; sixth ward, Christopher Poell, Byron Johnson; Eddington, Richard Fechtenburg; Cornwells, Lewellen Williams; Tullytown, G. W. Wright.

Mr. Metzger told the captains that they had ten days in which to go out and collect $5,000 and hoped that this district would go over the top.

James Hill, son of M. J. Hill, and a member of the Boy Scouts, addressed those assembled and made a plea for Scouting.

He spoke as follows: "Friends of the Boy Scouts of Bucks County, we are very grateful for this chance to ask your support in our campaign."

"No doubt you know what Scouting means to the boys. We are proud of our Council and of the record we have made in the last few years. But we want to see a lot more boys getting the benefits of Scouting, too. We want to see more troops, more members, and more activities, so the county will be chucked full of daily good turns. We want Scouting to stand just as high in our County as it does in other nearby counties."

"And then there is our training camp. It is in a beautiful place. I hope you have seen it. We want you to know that the good times and good eats are not all that we go to camp to get. We go to our camp to get the best possible training in the great principles of Scouting, and we also learn a real reverence for God's great out-of-doors. If we only had better buildings and equipment, hundreds more of the Scouts could use the camp winter and summer, because it is only about forty miles away."

"We think Bucks County Scouts have a right to as good a program of Scouting and camping as any Council in the country. We cannot raise the money ourselves. If the citizens of our county will raise the funds this month to support the rapid growth of our Council for the next two years, as well as to improve the camp, we will do our best to make the troop meetings and the camp become still more helpful as training centers for service, character and citizenship."

"We try to make the Scout Law and Oath become our standard in our daily living."

"The Scout Law is:

- A Scout is Trustworthy
- A Scout is Loyal
- A Scout is Helpful
- A Scout is Friendly
- A Scout is Courteous
- A Scout is Kind
- A Scout is Obedient
- A Scout is Cheerful
- A Scout is Thrifty
- A Scout is Brave
- A Scout is Clean
- A Scout is Reverent

"The Scout Oath is: 'On my honor I will do my best: To do my duty to God and my Country, and to obey the Scout Law; To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.'"

"We deeply appreciate your interest and thank you for your attention and co-operation."

Including today there are only 19 shopping days to Christmas.

Nearly everything attending the celebration of Christmas is very old. Reunions of families, feasting, singing of carols, the tree, the wreaths, the holly, the mistletoe and exchanges of gifts have preceded centuries old. In all of it, only the Christmas greeting is, relatively, new. The cards of greeting date from the '40s of the last century.

Yet this fledgling of a mere 90 years' growth has become to be the giant of, so to say, Christmas work. For every

Neshaminy Man Claims Physician Prescribed Whiskey For Medicinal Purposes

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 3.—Fred Melley, operator of a refreshment stand on the Bethlehem pike near Allentown, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Hiram H. Keller to possessing and transporting fourteen half-barrels of beer on October 10. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and costs and serve 30 days in the county prison.

"When the fellow came to my place and asked me to haul beer, I did not want to do it," Melley told Judge Keller. "But," he continued, "the boss promised me that I would be taken care of and could not get in wrong."

"Have you been taken care of since you have been arrested?" Judge Keller asked Melley, who reluctantly nodded his head to the contrary.

Under further examination it was found that Melley was arrested eight years ago in Allentown for violating the liquor laws and was placed on parole after serving a short sentence.

Walter Elnetke's half-pint of whiskey was for medicinal purposes, Judge Keller was informed yesterday when the Neshaminy roadside stand proprietor pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor. State Police raided his place and seized a half-pint of whiskey. The defendant told Judge Keller that his Philadelphia physician prescribed it for him.

Elnetke told the Court that he worked at night in a Philadelphia steel works and that his wife operated the roadside stand. He said that if complaints were registered against his place, it must have been by "jealous neighbors who hated to see him get along."

The Court advised Elnetke that if his physician continued to prescribe liquor it should be through the regular system of prescription and labeled bottle.

Judge Keller suspended sentence and placed the costs on Elnetke after a number of character witnesses had been called in his behalf.

"This is a case where good character counts," Judge Keller reminded Elnetke.

Frank Stetter, of Yardley, and Alexander Smith, a neighbor, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of possessing intoxicating liquor on October 6 when they were arrested by Thomas South, of Yardley, and Constable Edward Neely, of Warwick township. Whea arrested the men had a small quantity of whiskey in half-pint bottles in their possession. Stetter, a former resident of Trenton, was fined $100 and costs, while Smith was directed to pay the costs and placed on probation for a year.

Two desertion and non-support cases were before Judge Keller yesterday. Adam Farkas, who works for Morrisville Borough as a laborer, was directed to pay his wife $10 a week toward the support of her three children. Judge Keller advised them to "get together and start life over again."

Edwin F. Nace, of Point Pleasant, who for many years was employed by a large telegraph company, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Keller to a charge of driving his car while drunk near New Hope. He was fined $200 and costs. A large number of character witnesses spoke in his behalf, including several former employers.

"It will be doing you a favor to put you away some place where the rum can soak out of you," Judge Keller told Frank Kentopp, of Doylestown, yesterday, when he was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and serve not less than six nor more than twelve months in the county prison.

Kentopp, who formerly bore an excellent reputation in Doylestown as a young man, was informed by the Court "that drink had the best of him and that he lacked will-power to overcome the taste." He stole $110 from his brother and in his defense stated that he was too drunk to know what he was doing. While a motion for a new trial was pending after he had been convicted, Kentopp again got drunk and started a fight in a local restaurant.

Thomas B. Claxton, of Wrightstown township, was appointed foreman of the grand jury yesterday by Judge Keller. Jury trials will get started today, with Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg assisting Judge Keller.

AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT

With the weather more favorable for business, merchants are apt to complain very soon of being too busy for comfort. Into the days to Christmas will be crowded not only the usual holiday business but also a great deal of the purchasing which has been put off because of unseasonably warm weather generally. November almost set a new record for excess of temperature.

In early reports of holiday trade, results are deemed quite satisfactory. There has been no overstocking, but it is entirely possible that certain stocks of goods will run short as the selling progresses because backward trade earlier in the season caused many retailers to hold down their orders. At the same time manufacturers were hesitant to produce for stock purposes.

Statistics coming through on trade and industry picture a rather irregular, but generally satisfactory, situation. November mail order business reflected improvement in the farming regions, the business being ahead of a year ago. With some few exceptions department stores throughout the country report increased business. So far as the general indicators of business are concerned, they also present a "spotty" appearance. Stock transactions are large and bank clearing are breaking records, but freight clearings are below those of a year ago in many sections.

All in all, the situation is serious only for those who fail to do their Christmas shopping early. Christmas eve may find the store shelves and cases as bare as the cupboard of Mother Hubbard. It is a risk none can afford to take at a time when the happiness of others hang on a gift.

THE END

Subsistence of the continents beneath the seas and the drowning of the races is the latest scientific guess as to the end of the world—some 25,000,000 years hence. For this last much thanks.

There still remains to man plenty of time in which to enjoy himself and to get something out of life. In the meantime, he will doubtless be treated to many variations of the story as to the end-all. Only a few weeks ago scientists solemnly gave warning of an ending by drought with seas receding and land becoming too arid and torrid for existence.

Between being dried out and being drowned there may not be much choice, but there is wide range of difference. In between there is room for innumerable variations, and beyond there is room for even wilder fancies and guesses. It seems the scientific alarmists can not long remain silent on this subject. Very often prophets rise up to forecast the end. Many have been so rash as to cast their disaster for an early date, and accordingly have been discredited by failure.

Later prophets have generally adopted the safer rule of fixing the end-rule at some remote time. Now that this warning has been issued the world public may get set for the next guess, which will not be long in coming if scientific alarmists keep up their prophetic gait.

How alluring farm life looks to city folk when the car is hitting 40.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS
Come to the new world that their boy, Ted, may have its greater opportunities in making a career as a violinist. The Molnars take up humble quarters in New York. Ted tramps the streets seeking a position as violinist. A theatrical producer, Mr. Abrams, advises him to give up the violin, which New York does not want, and learn to play a hot saxophone. He will then help him to find a job. Ted pawns the valuable violin present to his father, a noted Budapest conductor and violinist, for $200 and buys a saxophone. He repairs to Central Park to practice, knowing his father's abhorrence of jazz.

INSTALLMENT VII
"Are you Mr. Abram's wife?"
"Oh, no!" she exclaimed in embarrassment, "I'm the governess."
"Isn't that great!" Ted grinned, relieved.
"Where are you going from here?" she asked him.
"That's what I want to know," answered Ted disconsolately.
"I'm leaving the children for the afternoon. Their father wants them to go to the movies with him. Wait for me here, for about ten minutes, I'll be right back."
In a few moments she returned. "Tell me your name," she demanded in her direct and friendly way.
When he answered, she told him that her name was Gail Wilson.
"Goodness! Have you been sick or working too hard since I saw you last? You look paler and thinner."

"No, I haven't been sick. I've been working hard—terribly busy."
He was so used to bluffing and lying to people to keep them from knowing how serious things were that he said it more or less automatically, but suddenly he blurted out, "Busy looking for a job."
She shook her head sympathetically.
"I know there's no harder work, and the wages are—" she looked up at him pityingly, "Are so little."
It was a relief not to have to pretend. He had to pretend even with his mother and father.
"I've been all through it. I've walked up and down Broadway until I felt like a postman."
"And did everybody give you a letter to everybody else?"
"Of course, everything to get rid of you, but never mind now. Let's go where we can talk."
Ted and Gail were seated in a little restaurant for a sandwich and a cup of coffee and had just thanked and said "good-night" to the patrolman, whose timely interference had kept Ted from going to jail. They were in close conversation—the sandwich and coffee being the excuse of their being there. The waitress—her arms full of orders gave up the idea of attracting their attention and said in a loud voice—"Which of you is chicken salad?" and embarrassed from her long seclusion Gail answered—"I am chicken salad."
Then to Ted—"And you are Goulash?" to which that happy young man replied—"I certainly am!"
The next morning as Ted shaved in the little bathroom, which opened into the living room, he whistled a merry tune. No one was about and the melody grew into one of the latest jazz numbers he could not help but learn. Just living in this city was enough to make you like the music, so expressive of the spirit of it! His father never went any place where such music could be heard, and besides he was an old man, and his memories of the magnificent occasion when he had conducted his own orchestra and had played music from the authentic old masters, still clung to him. It was as much a part of him as the clothes he wore, and he could not, of course, tolerate the modern conception of music.

His father forbade him to whistle it again.

The question came abruptly and Ted was hard hit for an answer. Ted had had planned that all out in his mind before. He had given the matter reasonable thought, he would have known this would be the first question his father would ask him.
A caring elevated train passed and the silence gave the boy a chance to think of a logical answer. He hesitated, for the first time, the noise that made conversation impossible.

Lawlessness Increase Worries Hoover

home building, public health and child protection should continue.

Federal Prisons

Federal prisons are badly overcrowded and Congress should provide immediate remedy by new buildings. The parole system should also be revised.

Immigration

Present policy should be continued, but Congress should consider some modifications and improvements.

Veterans

All veteran activities should be grouped under single Federal agency.

Civil Service

System should be extended to include third-class postmasters.

Governmental Reorganization

Congress should delegate some of its authority to the President to make changes in the interests of economy and greater efficiency.

Conclusion

"The test of the rightfulness of our decisions must be whether we have sustained and advanced the ideals of the American people; self-government in its foundations of local government; justice whether to the individual or to the group; ordered liberty; freedom from domination; open opportunity and equality of opportunity;

the initiative and individuality of our people; prosperity and the lessening of poverty; freedom of public opinion; education, advancement of knowledge; the growth of religious spirit; the tolerance of all faiths; the foundations of the home and the advancement of peace."

Entertain Friends At Madisor. Street Home

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roth, of Madison street, entertained friends at their home on Saturday evening.

The evening was pleasantly spent playing progressive pinocle and three tables of players were formed and eight games played.

Favors were given to Mr. Earl McEuen, Mrs. Charles Powell and Mrs. Arthur Ford.

Refreshments were served at a late hour to the following guests:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McEuen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roth and son, Henry, Joseph Winslow.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS' MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Camp Fire Girls on Wednesday night, at which time they will hold a council fire at the home of Peggy Allen, 905 Garden street. Five new members will be taken in at that time. They are as follows: Rita Barnfield, Doris Hentunty and equality of opportunity;

Burton and Jane McAuley. It is hoped that all the girls will be present.

HEALTH TROUBLES GONE -- KONJOLA AGAIN TRIUMPHS

After Two Years Suffering Young Braddock Lady Finds Quick Relief in Famed Konjola

MISS ETTA GRAHAM

"Even though I am a young lady and at the age when I should be enjoying the best of health, I was a constant sufferer of stomach troubles for the past two years," said Miss Etta Graham, 539 Price avenue, North Braddock, Pa. "For two years there hardly ever has been a time that I really could enjoy a good meal. Food would lie in my stomach undigested. There it would sour and gas would form. Naturally I lost my appetite and my strength and vitality."

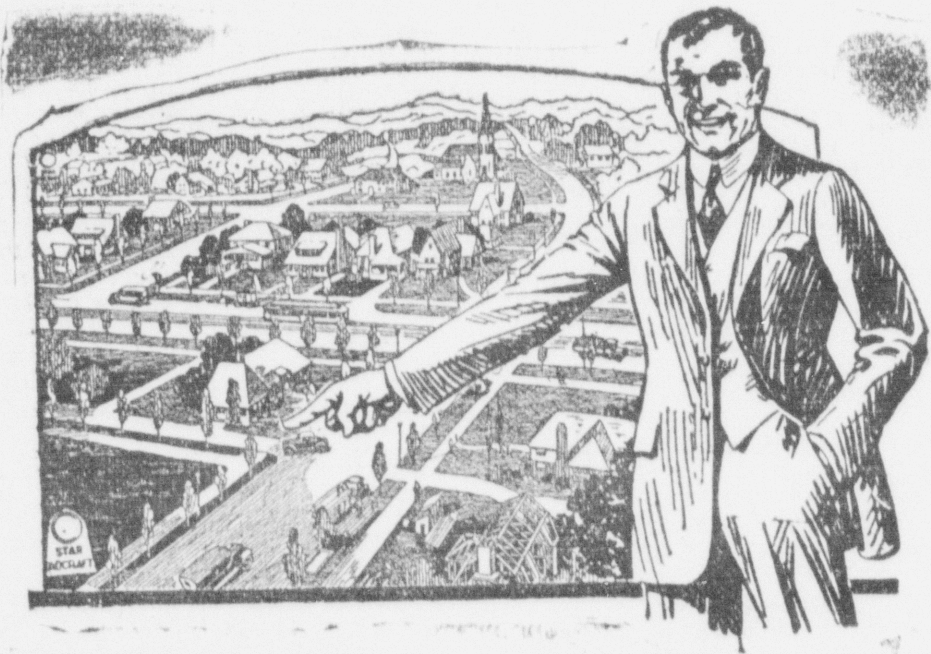

"After I had tried every medicine that was recommended to me, my mother insisted that I try Konjola. After taking the third bottle of this medicine, stomach troubles are only a disagreeable memory. I eat anything I desire without any ill after effects. My old pep and vigor have returned and I enjoy going places and doing things."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)
